About 100 students from different academic levels and educational centres have visited the Ercros factory in Aranjuez during the first two weeks of November. Among the visitors are students in the second year of high school from the Salesianos Loyola School in Aranjuez, the degree in Chemical Engineering from the Polytechnic University of Madrid (PUM) and postgraduate students in Biotechnology from the Complutense University of Madrid (CUM).

During the three visits, the Ercros managers gave a presentation on the company, the Aranjuez factory and its main activities. Then, together with various technicians from the factory, the groups took a guided tour of the facilities, adapted to the specialties of each of them.

The attendees valued the activity positively and considered the possibility of getting to know, first-hand, an industrial plant very interesting, as well as the explanations and the Ercros initiative to open the doors of its centres to this type of experience.
